

Fruitfulness on the Frontline

An eight session series for small groups produced by the London Institute for Contemporary Christianity.

Everyone has a frontline, whether at work, at school or university, the street where you live, the local pub or sports club, the job centre, a retirement home, or maybe a group you belong to. This series helps you to think about your frontline and how God might be working with you and through you in your different contexts throughout the week.

After watching a short film (8-13 mins), you'll have the opportunity to discuss the ideas raised and share from your own experiences. Groups work best where everybody has a chance to contribute and talk about what fruitfulness might look like in their own frontline context.

Each session takes about 90 minutes, includes scripture for study, makes time for prayer, and ends with a 'Takeaway Action', which is a small activity that you can try out on your frontline in the week.

For more information about this course, watch the promotional video

Download a free copy of the Group Leader's Guide

St Aldates has purchased a number of copies of the DVD and accompanying book. To borrow these materials, please email communications@staldates.org.uk